Petersburg, Va., July 3 .-- Minus a manager and a second baseman, because of the determination of James Sullivan to quit the Colts, and Egan's similar action. Petersburg fans

Egan's similar action. Petersburg fans had the pleasure of witnessing a crushing defeat handed to Richmond by Helnie Busch and his men this afternoon in a game which ended 6 to 1.

George Cowan was in charge of the extra base in the games ox-sullivanites, and he did his best to make Joe Pierce pitch bail, but Joe was evidently under the weather from his strain at first base in the games last week, for the Goobers found him for enough hits most of which were of the extra base variety, to win. On the other hand, Bruckmiller, working for Petersburg, held the Colts to three bingles, and had the whip hand throughout the engagement.

Braced for a While.

After this initial disaster Pierce seemed to brace, and really pitched good bail for four innings, allowing only one hit in that time and having matters pretty well in hand. The sixth was the Waterloo for the hig fellow. Busch doubled to left and Keilher did the same thing in the same place, scoring Busch. Spencer tripled to right, scoring Keilher, and he scored on Hannifan's double to left centre. All of which means that three doubles and a triple in one inning yielded three runs.

Rapp must be held responsible for the final tally of the Goobers. He was playing second, vice Egan, who had vamped, when Booe hit to McCabe for ball via Rapp, and the pitcher-second baseman toyed with the ball while Booe kept on making the circuit. When he finally decided to make the throw Booe was safe on third. Pierce got in some more of his good work at this stage, making a wild heave, which allowed Booe to score.

Coits Score Once.

Richmond got two men as far second base during the nine he other frames elpless.

Colts Score Once.

Richmond got two men as far as second base during the nine frames, and managed to help one across. In the other frames they were absolutely helpless. The lone tally came in the seventh. Martin walked and stole. Rapp hit to left field fence for a double, which scored Martin. That was all and it was the only time that there
